

What is Support Coordination?

Understanding your NDIS plan support

What is Support Coordination?

Support Coordination is a funded NDIS support that helps you get the most out of your NDIS plan. A Support Coordinator works alongside you to understand your plan, connect you with services, and build your confidence to manage your own supports over time.

What Does a Support Coordinator Do?

- Help you understand what’s in your NDIS plan and what your funding can be used for
- Research and connect you with the right providers for your needs
- Help set up service agreements and support plans
- Coordinate supports across multiple providers
- Assist with preparing for plan reviews and gathering evidence
- Build your capacity to manage your own supports independently
- Advocate on your behalf when things don’t go to plan
- Support you through significant life changes or transitions

The Two Levels of Support Coordination

Support Coordination	Specialist Support Coordination
For participants who need help understanding and using their plan. Focuses on building skills and connecting with providers.	For participants with complex needs or challenging situations. Delivered by someone with specialist qualifications.
Funded under Capacity Building	Funded under Capacity Building

Who is it For?

Support Coordination is especially helpful if you:

- Are new to the NDIS and finding it overwhelming
